From the developer...

'As the name suggests Taylor Country Homes is a family run business with a passion for creating beautifully designed luxury detached homes in the countryside. Taylor Country Homes typically build small developments of up to 15 homes with well-planned desirable layouts

Geoff and Sally Taylor started the business together after successfully building a number of homes around the North West of England and are the sole Directors of the company. They are very much hands on working Directors and involved in every aspect of their developments from concept to completion. Both have been involved in every one of their many schemes from design through construction hand picking a team of professionals to work with including Architects, Engineers, trades and supply chain partners to ensure quality is maintained throughout

Geoff is a qualified Building Surveyor and Valuer with the RICS (Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors) and has worked extensively with builders and developers on many schemes across the UK and overseas for over 40 years. During his life he has worked utilising modern methods of construction and ran a building product supply chain business comprising 17 branches of a large PLC across the Pacific Rim. On returning to the UK, Geoff & Sally from scratch built a door, window and curtain walling business across the UK designing, manufacturing, supplying and installing doors and windows in large housing schemes across the UK. At this time - Geoff and Sally also developed a window of the future utilising green credentials that won a European Award for excellence and with it a large grant to bring it to market. They have been building Country Houses for four decades and are always proud to show their achievements.

Sally who is an avid interior designer is involved in every aspect of Taylor Country Homes Schemes from design through to fit out. Sally is meticulous with detail and takes an active role in every project managing it on site herself; whether it is foundations, groundworks, plumbing and heating, electrical layouts, kitchens, all and interior finishes. Sally and Geoff liaise with top UK and European manufacturers and suppliers in order to deliver the finishes expected in a Taylor Country Homes today. The success of the company and its projects is largely down to Sally's direction in the above and she carries her work out with true conviction.

Together, Geoff & Sally who have been together 34 years (yes, they are married!) have developed a very broad experience in building beautiful country homes and every house they build is designed to be both aesthetic to the eye and functional as home for good living. Geoff & Sally take great pride in building their homes and everyone is finished to the highest standard.'
