The Land and Barn at Hause Foot occupies a position within the Lake District National Park and presents a rare opportunity to acquire approximately 5.34 acres (2.16 hectares) of pastureland together with a traditional stone barn, offering significant potential for a range of uses, subject to the necessary planning consents.

Hause Foot is situated near the rural hamlet of Selside, within the Lake District National Park, enjoying a peaceful countryside setting surrounded by open farmland and fells. The property is accessed off the A6, and then approximately 2 miles on a council owned road thereafter, providing a rural location whilst remaining within convenient reach of nearby towns. Kendal, approximately 12 miles to the south, offers a wide range of shops, schools, leisure facilities and transport links, whilst Junction 39 of the M6 is also easily accessible, providing connections to the wider region.

Constructed of traditional stone beneath a slate roof, the barn retains a wealth of original features, including exposed stone walls, cobbled flooring and timber beams. Currently utilised for livestock purposes, the barn is complemented by a livestock handling yard, making it ideally suited for continued agricultural use. The barn also offers excellent scope for alternative uses and conversion, subject to the necessary planning consents.

The adjoining land extends to approximately 5.34 acres and comprises a well enclosed block of pastureland, suitable for agricultural, equestrian or amenity use, whilst enjoying uninterrupted views across the surrounding countryside.

This is a rare opportunity for developers, investors or lifestyle purchasers to acquire a traditional stone barn with adjoining pastureland in a Lake District location, offering excellent scope for conversion or alternative uses, subject to the necessary planning consents.
